October 2009: NEW REGULATION ON ENTRY VISAS FOR VIETNAM
The Vietnamese government has tightened its visa and visa extension regulations. This policy will affect many expatriates that are currently in the country and will force companies to obtain work permits for their expatriate staff. Effective immediately, the Vietnamese Department of Immigration has reduced the maximum stay for visa holders from 6 months to 3 months*. Furthermore, these visas can now be extended only once for 30-90 days depending on each case. This rule applies to visa-waiver visitors as well. The decision 34/2008/ND-CP dated 25th March, 2008 defines that only expatriates with diplomas (university/master/doctor diploma) or recognized high skills are allowed to work in Vietnam. Expatriates employed in Vietnam for 3+ months are required to obtain a work permit. The work permit holder will be allowed to extend his/her stay in 6 months increments for the duration of their work permit and is eligible to obtain a residence card after 6 months in Vietnam. Expatriates with work permits are eligible for 3+ month visas.
